On a recent tour of Italy, she gave my husband and me a private tour of Naples, Pompeii and the Archaeological Museum! This woman REALLY knows her city, and really knows the sites. She is extremely well versed in everything we saw, and did. She is an expert in the arts, a delightful, vibrant and passionate woman about her city. Its up to you if you get the book; all I know is our tour with her was amazing, and I can't imagine her book isn't incredible as well given the depth of her knowledge and passion.

NAPLES IN THREE DAYS aims to give short-stay visitors the opportunity to become immersed in the quiriness of this magnificent city. The book aims to be your local expert, with its careful selection of monuments and places of artistic interest.

About the Author Fiorella Squillante is an expert in Neapolitan art and culture and has many years of experience showing both Italian and foreign visitors the historical sights of Naples. She studied art and foreign languages at the University of Naples and she has participated in a number of art courses and seminars in museums and institutes in Naples and abroad. For many years Fiorella has liaised with the education departments of the main museums in Naples and she has extensive experience as a tour guide. She also works closely with "Friends of Museums" from abroad and she regularly contributes to travel guides. Fiorella is the president of the cultural association Fine Arts, which organizes cultural events, private viewings and themed routes in Naples and Campania. She is a passionate advocate of the merits of her native city and her insider's knowledge of Naples art, culture and life-style will guide you through both the well-know places and some hidden secrets of the city.
