From Leksikografski zavod Miroslav Krleza : Navigational Guide to the Adriatic : Croatian Coast before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Navigational Guide to the Adriatic : Croatian Coast:

This handbook describes the well-indented Croatian coast from the Harbour Master's Office Pula on the north to the Harbour Master's Office Dubrovnik on the south with its coves and small bays reaching far into the land and numerous islands, natural harbours and well-protected anchoring places, modern marinas and the possibility of staying in small, picturesque port towns. In each chapter there is an orientation map and a table listing the distances in order to help you plan your daily tour. There are also a lot of colour photographs of places and harbours, made mostly from the airplane and containing plenty of descriptions. In addition to the important navigation instructions, the handbook contains information on how to approach each individual cove or port, where to stay or shop, as well as which cultural and historical places one might visit.
