Tony Gowers : Offa's Dyke Path (National Trail Guides) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Offa's Dyke Path (National Trail Guides):

A guide to Offa's Dyke Path, the 177-mile National Trail following the ancient earthwork that criss-crosses the border country of modern England and Wales, from the Severn Estuary to the seaside resort of Prestatyn on the Irish Sea.

"This is the 177-mile National Trail that follows the ancient earthwork that criss-crosses the border country of modern England and Wales, starting from the Severn Estuary to the seaside resort of Prestatyn on the Irish Sea. Whether you are a long-distance walker or simply a weekend walker, this book will be a huge help. The route is split into convenient sections, Ordnance Survey mapping throughout, up-to-date information on public transport and where-to-stay, along with some super photographs."
