Valeria Denny Gunton : Paris, Here We (Didn't) Come, in 1939 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Paris, Here We (Didn't) Come, in 1939:

I used it in my class as an example of travel journal writing, and the students were struck by the differences in dress, travel accommodations, and fascinated by the observations the writer made.

A 14 year-old's diary of a European trip cut short by start of World War II. With prolog and addendum, plus pertinent background information. 53 pp., with illustrations. For ages 12 - 99.

About the Author Author was a 14 year-old Californian, country reared, although a BIT sophisticated due to prior U.S. and Canada travel. Trip designed to visit relatives in Sweden and Finland and (for her mother) to attend the convention of the International Federation of University Women that would be held in Stockholm that summer. Author had a chance to meet women from other countries at at a convention banquet.
